D.B. BILLS

SYRUP

One Dose Cures Cough, Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Eczema, Scalds, Burns, Frost Bites, and all other skin diseases.

Gen. Logan's Sudden Death.

Is a great shock to the nation. Few knew that he was ever indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General J. A. Logan. Through all his career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies, he will be missed by all.

His death adds fuel to the long list of victims of sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly no danger so completely hidden as this. It is a disease which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism, and it is a disease which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism.

Only one remedy has been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism, and it is a disease which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is a disease which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism, and it is a disease which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism.

MEMBERSHIP ON THE PLAIN.

The "Brotherhood" of the Plain.

Imagine yourself then firmly seated. If the horse is blind you reach forward and remove the blind. Now the struggle begins. For a moment the horse is in the saddle, but you can feel his muscles quivering as he gathers himself together. Crouching like a wildcat about to spring, he leaps high into the air and with a crash shakes himself in a mad effort to throw off the unaccustomed burden. He comes down with his head between his fore legs and his tail behind his hind legs, and the ground stiff-legged, and as soon as he has given you the full benefit of the shock crouches for another leap. This is "backing" or "the more intricate and dangerous term it, "pitching." No two horses pitch alike, and no horse pitches twice alike. Sometimes he will strike on his fore legs and nose, throwing his head high as he turns a somersault forward. Sometimes he will make a lateral jump, and at others "change end," or turn half round in the air. Now a "brotherhood" of the plain does his work in the presence of a handful of spectators; and if he is one of the few men who are absolutely certain that nothing can "pitch" the horse, he will back him himself, weary, while he delights the crowd by rolling and lighting a cigarette or stooping to pick up a handful of dirt and throw it in the horse's face. Another favorite proof of his dexterity is to rove the horse from ear to tail.

A sharp pull at the horse's head just at the right moment, and the steel thrown into his flank with rhythmic pitch and pitch, and a sharp blow on the hind quarters with your whip compels him to lunge forward. He will then run a hundred yards or so and stop suddenly with his fore legs planted firmly before him. This of course necessitates your throwing your body well back, and he seizes this opportunity to back and throw himself violently on his back. Now is the time when a man shows whether he is a rider or a foolhardy braggart. Obviously you cannot retain your seat. A horse in executing this maneuver will often thrust the horn of the saddle flat in the ground and be left kicking turtlewise. You must see how he is going to back and throw yourself to the one side or the other, so that you have always one foot in position to cross him with as he struggles to rise. It is perfectly possible to make a horse to throw himself backward in this way three or four times, but when you have conclusively demonstrated to the crowd that you are a "brotherhood" of the plain, it is time to treat him as a willful misdoer. If you cannot, by spurring him in the flank as he rises and bringing his hind legs under him, prevent him from overreaching, you must strike him a sharp blow between the ears with the butt of your whip as he rises, and you will understand that he is overstepping the bounds of fair fighting.

After an hour or two he is completely exhausted and should be turned loose on the next day. His second day will try your seat and your patience even more severely, for you will then have him for the first time and he has learned better how to handle himself under your weight. But on the third day, if he is not a very recalcitrant subject, he will begin to learn something, and is then considered a "brotherhood" of the plain. —Cor. New York.

Senator Evans and Mark Twain.

Senator Evans has undoubtedly presided over more banquets than any other man in New York. His old-fashioned rolling collar and his finely plated shirt room and a familiar sight at all the waters at Delmonico's, the Hoffman or the Brunswick. The urbane senator enjoys a good dinner and good company, and with rare forbearance he never initiates a long speech into his fellow diners. Even his abnormal tendency to loquacity and his sentences are curbed upon social occasions. Mr. Evans' speech-making is a presiding officer in the social world of New York. He is a man of many parts, and his face is a study in itself. He is a man of many parts, and his face is a study in itself.

Occasionally in attempting to score a point on a fellow speaker he suffers the fate of the boomerang. He has been known to utter a remark which has been taken up by the crowd and has been taken up by the crowd and has been taken up by the crowd.
